Dr. Christian Montel

I'm Christian, Managing Director of ELIGO and of what you get when you combine carefully applied psychology, programming and data science with enjoyment of reflecting with others. I want to ensure that jobs and people find each other and can grow together – even or especially when it is not immediately obvious how well suited they actually are.

HR requires passion, ideas and careful implementation. If we believe in ourselves, we can make our ideas a reality. The more clearly we see and discuss what we want to achieve, the sooner we can get down to business.

Professional focus and project experience

- > Unleash who you really are: discovering potential, using it and fostering it in meaningful jobs.
- > Recruiting, development, promotion: how can companies and applicants find each other and grow together?
- > It's in the way that you use it: making responsible use of artificial intelligence in HR management.
- > Put New Work into practice: carefully creating contexts in which people want to work.
- > Key performance indicators, fairness and efficiency: how data can help us to see if we're on the right track.
- > Where we are headed: where does what we do on a day-to-day basis take us in the longer term – and what of that is intentional?
